PROJECTS

AniLog — Media Tracking & Community Platform

anilog.squareweb.app

- Designed and modeled a relational database (PostgreSQL) using Prisma ORM, structuring entities, complex relationships, and indexes to manage users, ratings, and consumption logs.
- Implemented data collection and transformation processes (ETL-like), pulling information from multiple external sources (GraphQL and REST APIs) to unify catalogs and normalize data in the local database.
- Built storage routines and a caching system at the database level to optimize queries and reduce latency when consuming third-party APIs.
- Created data aggregation logic to calculate user consumption KPIs, such as total episodes watched, total time, and average ratings.

Apolinario Downloader — Web application for downloading videos and audio from multiple platforms

apolariodownloader.squareweb.app

- Full-stack application (Python/Flask) using yt-dlp to extract formats and download videos/audio from various platforms (YouTube, Instagram, Facebook, TikTok, and others) at different quality levels, with real-time download progress tracking via Server-Sent Events (SSE).
- Asynchronous download processing with dedicated threads, cookie-based authentication for restricted content, bypassing of blocks and IP-based rate limits, and client-side format conversion, deployed to a production environment (Square Cloud).

Freelance Portfolio — Personal showcase of projects and services

lucasapolinario.vercel.app

- Freelance portfolio built with HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, designed to present projects and services in an authentic way aligned with my personal identity, combining a professional presentation with personal touches that reflect my technical and creative skills.
